DEAN JAMES

Dean James was raised on sawdust floors, frozen winters, and the kind of country music that tells the truth whether you're ready for it or not. Born in Peterborough, Ontario, he stepped onto a stage at just three years old after his grandfather handed him a microphone and pushed him into the light. Most kids were learning their ABCs. Dean was learning how to hold a room. The stage never really let him go.

In 2015, he traded small-town familiarity for the neon hum of Nashville, building his name the old-fashioned way, one crowd at a time. His gritty, unmistakable voice has earned him spots on stages like Whiskey Jam and Bus Call.

His releases, including "With You," "Take My Time On You," and 2025's "Burned It Down," have pushed his catalog past 1.5 million global streams, connecting with listeners who lean toward substance over shine.

Drawing inspiration from the storytelling of Merle Haggard and Conway Twitty, alongside the modern edge of Chris Stapleton and Brothers Osborne, Dean bridges classic country roots with a contemporary punch.

Following his 2025 cross-Canada coast-to-coast tour, he now heads into a packed summer of fairs and festivals, bringing high-energy performances and hard-earned songs to stages across the country.
